Foundation Degrees - Qualifications that mean business

Foundation Degrees are innovative degrees that are designed and delivered in partnership with employers to equip people with the relevant knowledge and skills for business.

Benefits for the Employer

An employer taking on a Foundation Degree graduate means gaining someone who is prepared for the world of work and who is able to apply their skills immediately to your business. Foundation Degrees may also be studied part-time and offer relevant, valuable and professional learning and development opportunities for your current employees, extending their skills and your responsiveness.

Why Bother?

People with Foundation Degrees have the potential to make an immediate contribution to the workplace. Foundation Degrees also have clear progression routes to the final year of many Honours Degrees.

Foundation Degrees develop:

- work-specific skills that are relevant to a particular sector of industry
- key skills such as communication and problem solving
- general skills such as work-process management and professionalism.

How long is a Foundation Degree?

Two years with full-time study or part-time over a longer period, allowing an employee to study while at work
